HJORDIS KITTEL PARKER presenting

"DENMARK and GREENLAND"

About Hjordis Kittel Parker

HJORDIS KITTEL PARKER

Hjordis Kittel Parker came to the United States from her native Norway as a child of seven. Since her father was in the Consular Service for Norway, having been appointed by King Haakon VII, her early life memories form a gay kaleidoscope of frequent travel, of international social functions, of hearing strange languages, and of seeing people in varied unusual costumes.

After becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States, she spent her later girlhood at the Universities of California and Washington where she studied languages and journalism. She travelled both in Europe and in the Americas and felt equally at home in both continents.

She is married to Donald Parker, a California business man, is the mother of two children, and resides in Sierra Madre, a city in southern California.

"DENMARK and GREENLAND"

Since 1946-47 she has made frequent trips to Scandinavia and has produced several feature length lecture films on this part of the world. She presents these film lectures to some of the largest audiences in the United States, Canada and Hawaii. Believing that international understanding should work both ways, she also takes time to give film talks about America to the Scandinavian people in their own language. The Scandinavian foreign offices, observing the results of her work, offer Mrs. Parker all possible help, including hospitality and transportation by air, land and sea into the most remote regions of their countries.

About the Film

Theme of the Film: On a beautiful spring morning in Copenhagen, five young University students meet in the gardens of Tivoli. They are from five distinctly different parts of the Kingdom of Denmark — from Copenhagen, Jutland, Bornholm, Odense and Greenland. As their day at Tivoli progresses, the film returns to each of the students to tell of the lives of the areas from which they come.

Copenhagen: The whirling traffic swirls past the busy harbour where ships from all parts of the world come and go; past ancient castles and startlingly modern buildings. It edges through narrow streets where silversmiths fashion exquisite wares and craftsmen create treasures of porcelain.

Jutland: Among scenes of idyllic beauty the farmer works in his fields and cares for his animals. Rich milk from his cows is made into golden cheese at the co-operative dairy. Pelts from his mink are made into a fine stole. In an ancient manor farm the traditional Danish Christmas is celebrated with the decorating of the tree — the baking of cookies — the eating of rice porridge and roast goose — and the dancing around the lighted Christmas tree.

Bornholm: On the island of Bornholm, far out in the Baltic sea, the fishermen bring in the silvery herring from the sea and smoke it until it turns into a glittering, golden delicacy.

Odense: The spirit of Hans Christian Andersen lives not only here in his street and home, but in all the fairy tale sights of his country — the storks in the chimney, the ugly duckling, the chimney sweep, the statue of the little mermaid, and the lovely Prima Ballerina of the Royal Opera House who dances in her red shoes.

DR. MALCOLM MILLER presenting

"INSIDE BRITAIN"

Introducing Dr. Miller

Maynard Malcolm Miller began early to explore the peaks and passes of his native Northwest and by the time he was sixteen had climbed all of the "major summits" in Washington State. A graduate in geology from Harvard (magna cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa), and from Columbia Universities, he is a research associate of the Lamond Geological Observatory of Columbia University and for the past seven years has been associated with the American Geographical Society in New York, where he has been in charge of a number of field activities partially supported by the Society, the Office of Naval Research and the Departments of the Army and Air Force. Since 1940 he has led or participated in more than 20 different expeditions which have kept him in the field for 3 to 9 months each year. His researches have taken him to 54 foreign countries.

DR. MALCOLM MILLER

C of C Citation

He has recently completed a two-year Fulbright Research Fellowship in the Department of Geography at Cambridge University, England, and is now engaged in consulting work on Polar problems and in establishing an International Snow Observatory and Permanent Field Research Station in Alaska. He is executive director of the Foundation for Glacier Research and in 1954 the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce named him

"From Stonehenge to Skye"

"Inside Britain" covers a period of five years during the recent stay in the United Kingdom of Dr. Miller and Mrs. Miller. They travelled extensively throughout England, Cornwall, Wales and Scotland, and many of the subjects treated are those not seen by the short-term visitor. There are strange monuments of pre-Christian times from Lands End to the Orkney Isles; there are Stone Age flint mines in Norfolk; a Roman villa in Gloucestershire; King Arthur's legendary castle on a wind-lashed cliff above the Irish Sea; the brooding moors of Devon and Yorkshire; a brisk day of autumn color on a fox hunt in the shires.

Shark fishing in the Hebrides; rock climbing in Snowdonia and on the Gritstones of Derbyshire; the streams of Isaac Walton and Loch Coruisk of Sir Walter Scott fame; the black Cuillin Crags and shaggy cattle of the

NICOL SMITH presenting

"BONNIE SCOTLAND"

Nicol Smith — A Man of Firsts

Nicol Smith created a minor sensation in San Francisco when he was born — he was the first child born in the Fairmont Hotel. He has since acquired a reputation of being the first person to do a variety of interesting things. He was the first person to explore and photograph the remote interior of the island of Hainan; he was the first person to make a round trip over the fabulous Burma Road in interior China during the rainy season. He has wandered all over the South Seas. He is the author of five books, the most recent of which is "Golden Doorway to Tibet". During the war Lieutenant Colonel Nicol Smith was a secret agent for the OSS in both Vichy, France, and Thailand.

Perhaps his most unusual adventure was his caravan journey across western Tibet to Lake Pangong. Since then he has reached the base of Angel Falls, the world's highest waterfall. There he made the first motion pictures ever taken of this spectacular wonder.

When Nicol Smith is not on tour, he spends his time in his native California at his fishing lodge in the High Sierras.

BONNIE SCOTLAND

Some of the scenic highlights of this travel-tale include Gretna Green: home of the romantic old Blacksmith's Shop; Null of Galloway: southernmost point in Scotland and rich in legend and history; Loch Castle: this is the most famous Rhododendron garden in Scotland; Culzean Castle: this castle was gifted to the National Trust for Scotland in 1945. General Eisenhower was given the use of the top floor for life in recognition of his services during World War II; The Bobby Burns Story: covers his life story from where he was born in Ayr to where he died in Dunfries; The Sir Walter Scott Story: for the first time in history the interior of Abbotsford is filmed for a motion picture sequence; The Abbeys of the Border Country: a visit to the historic Dryburgh Abbey where Sir Walter Scott is buried; Edinburgh: beautiful city of parks and palaces which is an old and romantic shrine for the traveler; St. Andrews: the Open Golf Championship; Glasgow: the ship-building center of Scotland; Loch Lomond: the fabled loch of song and history proves to be even more beautiful than expected; Skye: a visit to the island of Skye in the Hebrides during Skye week; Inverness: this sequence fascinated Nicol Smith more than any other because for the first time he has been able to find and photograph for motion pictures what is believed to be the giant severed foot of the Loch Ness Monster. It was found in four feet of water near Urquhart Castle; Invercauld: this is the hereditary stronghold of the Farquharson clan. It is an estate of 280,000 acres with the River Dee, famous for its salmon fishing running through the estate.

Greenland: Out of the icy arctic sea rises the world's largest island, Greenland. Its thick ice cap moves unrelentingly towards the sea in huge glaciers which break off into brilliantly colored icebergs that float away in the currents. Along the melting edges of the ice cap the Greenlanders of the Settlements sometimes live in mud huts and skim along the sea in kayaks. In the Colony of Godthaab they live in more modern houses, attend school and church, and are in close contact with the Danish Administrators who are helping them to care for themselves. In the Colony of Sukkertoppen the cod is caught and dried, salted or frozen.

Hjordis Parker has prepared an interesting tape recorded musical background for her film "Denmark and Greenland", featuring the music of Grieg, famed Norwegian composer.
